ADMINISTRATION

MR. JAMES ROMEO
PRINCIPAL

A continuous program of learning from grade one through grade twelve is planned for the future in Marshfield. The high school will stress independent study. Much use will be made of computers and other equipment of the electronic age. Marshfield High School will seek to retain the personal touch, to look at the program of each student, and to encourage each to excel.

The "spirit of inquiry" prevails in the science department. New courses IPS, ESCP and CHEMS, all highly experimental in nature, have as their central theme the "discovery" approach to science.

in social studies . . . two pilot programs . . . one employs the "case study" technique . . . the other uses the reading and interpretation of only primary sources . . .

One very important project of the Student Council this year has been the revision of the school dress code. The experience gained in the democratic process will serve the members in good stead when they take their places as citizens of the country.

Each period of the day, some members of the Library club are busy performing the chores which help a library run smoothly. Checking in books, checking out books, and rearranging books on shelves are some of the tasks they enthusiastically perform under the able direction of Miss Andrews.

Once a year, they conduct a Book Fair which has become a tradition at Marshfield High. There is no doubt that this annual sale has stimulated in the student an increased interest in reading.

KEY CLUB

The Key Club

The Key Club has become one of the most respected groups in Marshfield High School. Its members are active, intelligent student leaders who readily volunteer their services for any worthwhile activity.

The Key Club has helped in such varied activities as rearranging the bookshelves at the Ventris Library and helping the police department locate lost children. They are playing a "key" role in the building of the new Marshfield Youth Center.

Its motto, "We Build" is well deserved, for the Key Clubbers build up students' pride for their school and town. Because of these boys, support is rallying in many activities, as their eager, enthusiastic spirit is caught by other members of the student body. The Key Club is successful--it builds character.

The Spirit of '67

In spirit and desire, the Rams outweighed any team in the South Shore. Their determination after two tough losses early in the season enabled them to sustain a fine record. The inspiration of the coaches produced the most important aspect of football, loyalty to one another. With the many talented underclassmen on this year's team, the future football teams of M.H.S. can look forward to many more winning seasons in the next few years.

Jumping into the air, clapping their hands vigorously, throwing back their heads, kicking their feet . . .

these are some of the ways our cheerleaders stimulate school spirit.

As one of the players said, "They were all a fellow needed to win a ball game. When they waved their green and white shakers, the whole crowd joined in the cheers that helped our players tremendously. At the Hull game, I don't think we would have scored if they hadn't been there."

JUNIOR PROM

On an evening in May, couples stepped out of the world of reality into the idyllic world of Camelot, passing over a magic drawbridge into a suspended moment in time. Highlights of the evening were the Grand March, led by the class officers, and the coronation of the queen, Debby Ames. Debby reigned upon a red and gold throne against a background of heraldic coats-of-arms, spring flowers, and medieval arches.
